CS330 concepts can be a bit unintuitive but his lectures helped simplify things a lot, even if attendance isn't mandatory. Quizzes were moderately difficult but the midterm and final were near identical to the practice exams he offered.

He requires buying a $60+ book written by another CS professor, which is mandatory. I observed 5 students cheating during the final exam, but his four TAs and he did nothing. He emailed everyone, claiming pride in the class average, which is all time high when cheating is permitted!!!

Amazing prof. Clearly explains concepts and how to solve practice problems. Makes sure everyone understands the content before moving on. Class layout was 1/2 new content, 1/2 review every week. Weekly take-home quizzes + HW, but they're short + manageable. Super reasonable exams as well. My only issue was the long time slot (2:40hr once a week).

Great professor! Made the complicated class easy to understand. Exams were very fair, infact way easier to compared to homeworks. Attend lectures to understand the material, he makes it simple to understand, and does multiple examples to solidy the understanding of the content. Truly a great professor.

Professor Zaman is super nice. His homeworks's do end up being a heavy portion of your grade so be sure to take your time and do them right. His lectures are a little hard to understand since their hand written lectures. 330 is a pretty difficult class in general. His exams are super clear if you do the quizzes and practice exams!

Very good lecturer with manageable homework and fair exams. Explains content clearly and does practice problems in class. 1 quiz and hw once a week, taking up to an hour. His exams are extremely similar to the homework and often times easier. My only gripe is the diabolical 4:30-7:10pm timeslot for this semester (Fall 2025). Otherwise, good prof

The concepts covered in this class are very abstract. And Dr. Zaman does his best to ease the difficulties. The best thing I can say about him is that, several times I noticed students asking dumb questions, something they would have known if they had studied. But he was never condescending, he would always answer questions patiently. Take him!

His lecture work is extremely difficult to read (scribbles every time), and he has an accent that's difficult for a whiteboy like me to decipher. I bought the textbook and just read it instead of going to the lectures and did perfectly fine. Very easy exams and his quizzes and assignments are light.

The class is tough regardless of who you have, but this professor does a great job at not making it that way. Attend the lectures as every minute of it helps with understanding the class and his explanations make the understanding the material easy. There are weekly homeworks and quizzes and the exams aren't out of left field.
