She puts in little effort in teaching and seems to get annoyed if you come during office hours. While asking questions in class, she will habitually cut you off. Her slides are hastily prepared and the lectures are fragmented. She might be a good researcher, but in my opinion, she is a poor teacher. Her grading criteria was arbitrary. Avoid

Her method of teaching needs serious overhaul. Lectures are incomprehensible info dumping sessions. You are better off skipping class and attempting to learn and comprehend all the material on your own time. The heavily weighted homework was easy though. This played a major role in saving my grade. Take Kosecka at your own risk.

She didn't seem like she cared about this class.

Dates on the schedule were incorrect, concepts on homeworks and the exams were never discussed

There was literally a negative curve. There is no D, only F, and an A starts at a 93. The homework she gave were insane full scale projects that we often actually copied from 600 level graduate classes. The midterm had an average of 50, best grade was a 70. For the final project she gave us bugged code, didn't fix it even, left that one up to us.

Jana Kosecka is hard to understand and follow sometimes. A very hard class so not necessarily Professor Kosecka's fault but she doesn't make it any easier. Very complex theoretical problems. Graded work doesn't really cover what is covered in class. Unless you are able to teach yourself these concepts, then I would advise you to not take this prof.

She really knows her stuff! The grading criteria was a bit off, so was the schedule. But she explains the concepts really well. If you go to her office hours, she will really try to help you. The TA was super helpful as well!

Honestly her class is not that hard. Just do her practice midterm and final and u will be fine on the actual tests. Shes also a lenient grader. Her explanations are actually easy to understand, but might be a bit dry. If u take her online, just watch her recordings at 2x speed or something. Other than that, shes pretty chill.

She's a smart person with how many papers she's written and published, but it doesn't translate very well to her teaching skills. Monotonous voice and really sometimes getting confused by her own slides also throw off the pace of the class. The book is really good though.

I think this is the worst class I've taken so far. The lectures are so boring is hard not to fall asleep. It was difficult to follow the lectures, professor was unenthusiastic and didn't explain the concepts in a manner that students could understand. She is slow to respond to emails and sometimes doesn't
