Avoid. Exams far harder than lectures, closed book, no cheat sheet, minimal partial credit even for correct reasoning. Grading policy changed 3 times. Refused to meet, rejected my regrade in one dismissive line, told me to stop emailing. Cost me my job offer and delayed my graduation and master's program. The worst professor I've

This Professor is up there with some of the worst experiences I have had at George Mason University. To start off, this class is extremely test heavy with 60% of it being reliant on tests. This is not a problem, however, his grading is extremely tough and inconsistent. Also not a nice person as an individual, lacks patience and has a short temper.

Professor Setia is a great professor who clearly cares about his students' success. His lectures are organized, helpful, and easy to follow, and he explains difficult concepts in a way that makes them manageable. He is approachable, fair, and genuinely wants students to understand the material. Highly recommend.

Amazing teaching style and clarity. He had genuine passion for the topic and it was hard not to feel that same interest. Absolute cinema class. Only issue is his class ends.

Professor Setia is clearly very smart, but he is not very empathetic or passionate. His class is two tests, three projects, and 10% "participation" (attendance on 8 random days). His projects take no longer than 8-9 hours and there's only three of them. His exams are reflective of the lecture material and some project code slices. No BS homework.

Seems very knowledgible and also very flexible to the needs of the class. He pushed back an assignment because the class agreed we needed more time and also had extra credit opportunities. Lectures were also fairly engaging and interesting. Participation on BB in random classes. The content can be hard if you've never done it but worth learning.

This professor is NOT one of my favorites. A lot of my friends give mixed reviews and I was willing to give him the benefit of the doubt. However, he lost my respect after handing out 3 pop quizzes in a row. You can imagine how much it hurt all of our grades. I wouldn't recommend that people take him if they can avoid it.
